

CAMBRIDGE LATIN COURSE

Unit 1

Fifth Edition

THERMAE

Stage 9

About the language

1 Study the following examples:

- Clēmēns puellae vīnum offerēbat.
Clemens was offering wine to the girl.
- iuvenis servō pecūniam trādīdit.
The young man handed over money to the slave.
- dominus mercātōrī statuam ēmit.
The master bought a statue for the merchant.
- Grumiō ancillis cēnam parāvit.
Grumio prepared a dinner for the slave girls.
- Quīntus amīcīs discum ostendit.
Quintus showed the discus to his friends.
- servī leōnibus cibum dedērunt.
The slaves gave food to the lions.

The Latin words in boldface are nouns in the dative case.

2 You have now met three cases. Notice the different ways in which they are used:

- nominative* servus dormiēbat.
The slave was sleeping.
- dative* dominus servō signum dedit.
The master gave a sign to the slave.
- accusative* dominus servum excitāvit.
The master woke the slave.

About the language

3 Here is a full list of the noun endings that you have met.

The new dative cases are in boldface.

		first declension	second declension	third declension
SINGULAR	nominative	puella	servus	mercātor
	dative	puellae	servō	mercātōrī
	accusative	puellam	servum	mercātōrem
PLURAL	nominative	puellae	servī	mercātōrēs
	dative	puellis	servīs	mercātōribus
	accusative	puellās	servōs	mercātōrēs

4 Further examples:

- a ancilla dominō cibum ostendit.
- b agricola uxōrī ānulum ēmit.
- c servus Metellae togam trādīdit.
- d mercātor gladiātōribus pecūniam offerēbat.
- e fēmina ancillīs tunicās quaerēbat.

5 Notice the different cases of the words for “I” and “you”:

nominative	ego	tū
dative	mihi	tibi
accusative	mē	tē

- ego senem salūtō.
senex mihi statuam ostendit.
senex mē salūtāt.

- I greet the old man.
The old man shows a statue to me.
The old man greets me.

- tū pictūram pingis.
āthlēta tibi pecūniam dat.
āthlēta tē laudat.

- You are painting a picture.
The athlete gives money to you.
The athlete praises you.

in tabernā

Metella et Melissa ē villā māne discesserunt. Metella filiō togam quaerēbat. Metella et ancilla, postquam forum intrāvērunt, tabernam cōspexērunt, ubi togae optimaerant. multae fēminae erant in tabernā. servī fēminīs stolās ostendēbant. duo gladiātōrēs quoque in tabernā erant. servī gladiātōribus tunicās ostendēbant.

mercātor in mediā tabernā stābat. mercātor erat Marcellus. Marcellus, postquam Metellam vīdit, rogāvit, mercātor servīs signum dedit. servī mercātōrī togās celeriter trādidērunt. Marcellus fēminīs togās ostendit. Metella et ancilla togās inspexērunt.

“quid quaeris, domina?”

“togam quaerō,” inquit Metella. “ego filiō dōnum quaerō, quod diem nātālem celebrat.”

“ego multās togās habeo,” respondit mercātor.

“hercle!” clāmāvit Melissa. “haec togae sunt sordidae.”

Marcellus servōs vituperāvit.

“sunt intus togae splendidae,” inquit Marcellus.

Marcellus fēminās intus dūxit. mercātor fēminīs aliās togās ostendit. Metella Quīntō mox togam splendidam ēlēgit.

“haec toga, quantū est?” rogāvit Metella.

“quīnquāgintā dēnāriōs cupiō,” respondit Marcellus.

“quīnquāgintā dēnāriōs cupis! furcifer!” clāmāvit Melissa.

“ego tibi decem dēnāriōs offerō.”

“quadrāgintā dēnāriōs cupiō,” respondit mercātor.

“tibi quīndecim dēnāriōs offerō,” inquit ancilla.

“quid? haec est toga pulcherrima! quadrāgintā dēnāriōs cupiō,” respondit Marcellus.

“tū nimium postulās,” inquit Metella. “ego tibi trīgintā dēnāriōs dō.”

“cōsentiō,” respondit Marcellus.

Melissa Marcellō pecūniā dedit.

Marcellus Metellae togam trādidit.

“ego tibi grātiās maximās agō, domina,” inquit Marcellus.

Practicing the language

1 Complete each sentence with the verb that makes good sense.

Then translate the sentence, taking care with the different forms of the noun.

For example mercātōrēs fēminīs tunicās (audīverunt, ostendērunt, timuerunt) mercātōrēs fēminīs tunicās ostendērunt.

The merchants showed the tunics to the women.

- a ancilla dominō vīnum (timuit, dedit, salutāvit)
- b iuvenis puellae stolam (ēmit, vēnit, prōcessit)
- c fēminae servīs tunicās (intrāvērunt, quaesivērunt, contendērunt)
- d cīvēs āctōrī pecūniā (laudāvērunt, vocāvērunt, trādidērunt)
- e centuriō mercātōribus decem dēnāriōs (trādidit, ēmit, vīdit)

2 Complete each sentence with the correct form of the verb. Then translate the sentence.

For example gladiātor amīcīs togam (ostendit, ostendērunt) gladiātor amīcīs togam ostendit.

The gladiator showed the toga to his friends.

- a puella gladiātōribus tunicās (dedit, dedērunt)
- b cīvēs Milōnī statuam (posuit, posuērunt)
- c mercātor amīcō vīnum (trādidit, trādidērunt)
- d coquus ancillae ānulum (ēmit, ēmērunt)
- e Clēmēs et Grumiō Metellae cēnam optimam (parāvit, parāvērunt)

3 This exercise is based on the story in tabernā, opposite. Read the story again.

Write out each sentence, completing it with the correct noun or phrase. Then translate the sentence.

- a Metella ad forum ambulāvit. (cum Quīntō, cum Grumiōne, cum Melissa)
- b postquam forum intrāvērunt, cōspexērunt. (portum, tabernam, villam)
- c Metella gladiātōrēs et in tabernā vīdit. (āctōrēs, fēminās, centuriōnēs)
- d servī fēminīs ostendēbant. (tunicās, stolās, togās)
- e servī gladiātōribus ostendēbant. (togās, stolās, tunicās)
- f mercātor servīs dedit. (signum, togam, gladium)
- g servī mercātōrī trādidērunt. (togam, togās, stolās)
- h mercātor vituperāvit, quod togae erant sordidae. (gladiātōrēs, fēminās, servōs)

The baths

About the middle of the afternoon, Caecilius would make his way, with a group of friends, to the public baths. The great majority of Pompeians did not have bathrooms in their houses, so they went regularly to the public baths to keep themselves clean. As at a leisure center, city pool, or health club today, they could also take exercise, meet friends, and have a snack. Let us imagine that Caecilius decides to visit the baths situated just to the north of the forum, and let us follow him through the various rooms and activities.

At one of the entrances, he pays a small admission fee to the doorkeeper and then goes to the palaestra (exercise area). This is an open space surrounded by a colonnade, rather like a large peristylum. Here he spends a little time greeting other friends and taking part in some of the popular exercises, which included throwing a large ball from one to another, wrestling, and fencing with wooden swords. These games were not taken too seriously but were a pleasant preparation for the bath which followed.

From the palaestra, Caecilius and his friends walk along a passage into a large hall known as the apodytērion (changing room). Here they undress and hand their clothes to one of the slave attendants who places them in recesses arranged in rows along the wall.

Leaving the apodyterium, they pass through an arched doorway into the tepidārium (warm room) and spend a little time sitting on benches round the wall in a warm, steamy atmosphere, perspiring gently and preparing for the higher temperatures in the next room.

This is the caldārium (hot room). At one end of the caldarium there was a large marble bath, rectangular in shape, and stretching across the full width of the room. This bath was filled with hot water in which the bathers sat or wallowed. The Romans did not have soap, but used olive oil instead. After soaking in the bath, Caecilius summons a slave to rub him down with the oil that he has brought with him in a little pot. For this rubbing down, Caecilius lies on a marble slab while the slave works the oil into his skin, and then gently removes it and the dirt with a blunt metal scraper known as a strigil. Next comes the masseur to massage skin and muscles. Refreshed by this treatment, Caecilius then goes to the large stone basin at the other end of the caldarium for a rinse down with cold water.

A visit to the baths

These pictures show us one route which a bather might take through the baths after he leaves the palaestra.

They are taken from several different sets of baths, as no one set has all its rooms well preserved today.

duo servī in apodytēriō stant. servī sunt Sceledrus et Anthrāx.

Sceledrus: cūr nōn labōrās, Anthrāx? num dormīs?
Anthrāx: quid dīcis? dīlīgenter labōrō. ego cīvibus togās custōdīō.

Sceledrus: togās custōdīs? mendāx es!

Anthrāx: cūr mē vituperās? mendāx nōn sum. togās custōdīō.

Sceledrus: tē vituperō, quod fūr est in apodytēriō, sed tū nihil facis.

Anthrāx: ubi est fūr? fūrem nōn videō.

Sceledrus: ecce! homō ille est fūr. fūrem facile agnōscō.

An apodyterium (changing room) in the women's section of the Stabian Baths at Pompeii.

The caldarium (hot room) in the Forum Baths, Pompeii. At the nearer end note the large rectangular marble bath, which was filled with hot water. At the far end there is a stone basin for cold water. Rooms in baths often had grooved, curved ceilings to channel condensation down the walls.

Before dressing again he might well visit the frigidarium (cold room) and there take a plunge in a deep circular pool of unheated water, followed by a brisk rub down with his towel.

Metella, too, would have visited public baths. Some baths had a separate suite of rooms for the use of female bathers; others may have given access to men and women at different times, or may have allowed mixed bathing. We do not know whether women were allowed to exercise in the palaestra. In the Forum and Stabian Baths, where separate facilities for men and women existed, those for the women were smaller, and had a pool of cold water in the apodyterium rather than a separate frigidarium. The smaller facilities may be an indication that fewer women attended the baths, or that women attended less regularly than men. Alternatively, it may indicate that women's needs were regarded as less important than those of men.

A visit to the baths was a leisurely social occasion. Men and women enjoyed a noisy, relaxed time in the company of friends. The Roman writer Seneca lived uncomfortably close to a set of baths in Rome and his description gives us a vivid impression of the atmosphere there:

I am surrounded by uproar. I live over a set of baths. Just imagine the babel of sounds that strikes my ears. When the athletic gentlemen below are exercising themselves, lifting lead weights, I can hear their grunts. I can hear the whistling of their breath as it escapes from their lungs. I can hear somebody enjoying a cheap rub down and the smack of the masseur's hands on his shoulders. If his hand comes down flat, it makes one sound; if it comes down hollowed, it makes another. Add to this the noise of a brawler or thief being arrested down below, the racket made by the man who likes to sing in his bath, or the sound of enthusiasts who hurl themselves into the water with a tremendous splash. Next I can hear the screech of the hair plucker, who advertises himself by shouting. He is never quiet except when he is plucking hair and making his victim shout instead. Finally, just imagine the cries of the cake seller, the sausage man, and the other food sellers as they advertise their goods round the bath, all adding to the din.

A bronze statue of a boxer from a set of baths in Rome. His training would no doubt have contributed to the din about which Seneca complains.

Heating the baths

The Romans were not the first people to build public baths. This was one of the many things they learned from the Greeks. But with their engineering skill the Romans greatly improved the methods of heating them. The previous method had been to heat the water in tanks over a furnace and to stand braziers (portable metal containers in which wood was burned) in the tepidarium and the caldarium to keep up the air temperature. The braziers were not very efficient and they failed to heat the floor.

In the first century BC, a Roman invented the first central heating system. The furnace was placed below the floor level; the floor was supported on small brick piles leaving space through which hot air from the furnace could circulate. In this way, the floor was warmed from below. The hot bath was placed near the furnace and a steady temperature was maintained by the hot air passing immediately below. Later, flues (channels) were built into the walls and warm air from beneath the floor was drawn up through them. This ingenious heating system was known as a hypocaust. It was used not only in baths but also in private houses, particularly in the colder parts of the Roman empire. Many examples have been found in Britain. Wood was the fuel most commonly burned in the furnaces.

Hypocaust in the Stabian Baths. Notice the floor suspended on brick piles, so that hot air can circulate beneath and warm both the room and the tank of water for bathing.

The men's section is outlined in black and the women's in blue. See how the hottest rooms (red) in both suites are arranged on either side of the one furnace (marked by an orange dot). The blue circles near this are boilers. After losing some heat to the hot rooms the hot air goes on to warm the warm rooms (pink).
