Happy Memorial Day! No School!

Tuesday, May 26 - Friday May 29

We have two types of activities this week: viewing work from each other in “Gallery Folders”, and a “Shadow Games” drawing project. You will create scenes of silhouettes by drawing cast shadows - found or choreographed by you, or a combination thereof.

You are not turning in your work for a grade this week, but if you would like to share what you have done, I would love to see it!

Allot your time for the plan below as best suits you and your schedule from Tuesday through Thursday:

Open the Gallery Folders to view work from this quarter. Links to the Gallery Folders will be posted on GoogleClassroom Stream.

Drawing Session 1: Using a whole page in your sketchbook, lightly draw silhouettes of objects to create a design or a scene with “figures”, props and background. Here follow some suggestions:

- You could use foliage shadows for the background
- You could use toys or hands in various configurations for the figures (think shadow puppets)
- If you just love to construct things, you could make a tower of sticks and twigs and draw from its shadows for the background - obviously this would be a greater time investment

Drawing Session 2: Using a variety of hatching, mark-making, or shading techniques, fill in the shadows of your scene to obtain a variety of colors, values and contrast levels . If you have colored pencils, have someone select 4 pencil colors for you to use. Limiting yourself to just those colors, layer levels of shading and vary your weight of hand to achieve a wide range of colors and a distinctive mood. If you do not have colored pencils, explore the range of value, contrast and texture you can achieve with graphite to create an interesting mood and atmosphere.
